Restored faith

A DEMAND for garage door makeovers has been the key to the phenomenal success of Garage Door Restore, a company that supplies and installs a range of innovative veneers that can be easily fitted to existing garage doors, transforming them into a stylish and attractive feature.

Now the company is offering a new operating licence comprising three innovative new products and the original Garage Door Restore product range.

By Alison Coleman

The new range includes a plug-and-go electric panel radiator, ideal for integral garages used as informal recreational areas such as gyms and play rooms, and garage door panels that utilise solar thermal energy.

Director Damian Webb said: "Our new range aligns perfectly with our established original products, offering people an ideal opportunity to join our network."

Success that keeps on running

A TOUGH economic climate has helped to increase year-on-year sales by more than 25 per cent for online tyre company etyres.

Because etyres operates a low-cost mobile fitting service its prices are up to 40 per cent cheaper than those of leading high street tyre chains.

The company has continued to grow year on year since it was launched in 1998 but the internet revolution has sent sales sky-high.

Managing director Tony Bowman said: "We have a tried and tested formula that has helped us to exceed our sales targets week after week."

The etyres franchise operates as a sole trader or a management opportunity.
